

Privacy and Security

I can explain why I should always ask a trusted adult before I share any information about myself online.

Outcome Criteria

- Demonstrate the types of data that may be personal to you.
- Able to articulate under what conditions I would ask an adult for help.

Questions To Ask

- When is it OK to share personal information?
- What is personal information?
- Why is this information important?
- Why should we not just share this information all the time?
- What makes you think those adults are best?
- Are some adults better to ask than others? Why?

Activity Descriptor

Personal Information

- This activity reinforces a similar activity from the Early Years.
- Print out copies of the cards provided, enough for 1 set per pair of children. Or a few sets to use in a smaller group as part of an activity round.
- Invite the children to look at all the cards and support them to 'read' the word/picture.
- Ask the children to sort the cards out into two piles: Personal Information and Not Personal information.
- Discuss what makes something personal or not.
- Help the children to complete the 'Who can help me' sheet. They should write (or draw) the names of 5 people that they could ask for help if they think they are asked to share personal information online.

Personal Information?

- I can recognise more detailed examples of information that is personal to me (e.g. where I live, my family's names, where I go to school).
- I can explain why I should always ask a trusted adult before I share any information about myself online.
